I dedicate this book to Ivie. I enjoyed creating this story and its characters with you, and I hope that your imagination and creativity stay vividly within you. This book is just a little affirmation that all your dreams can become true. Dream big, kiddo; the world is yours to conquer.

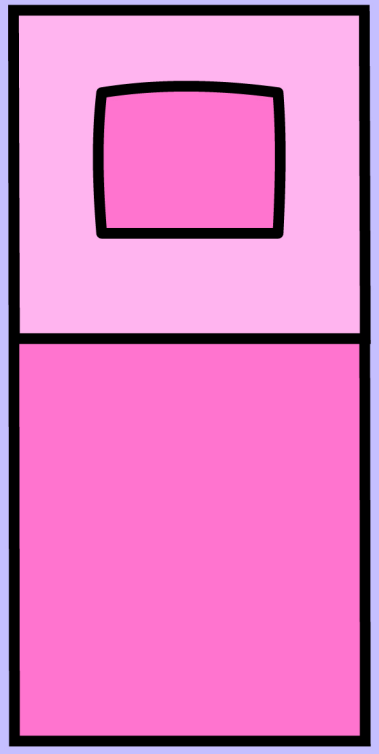

Love,
Dad

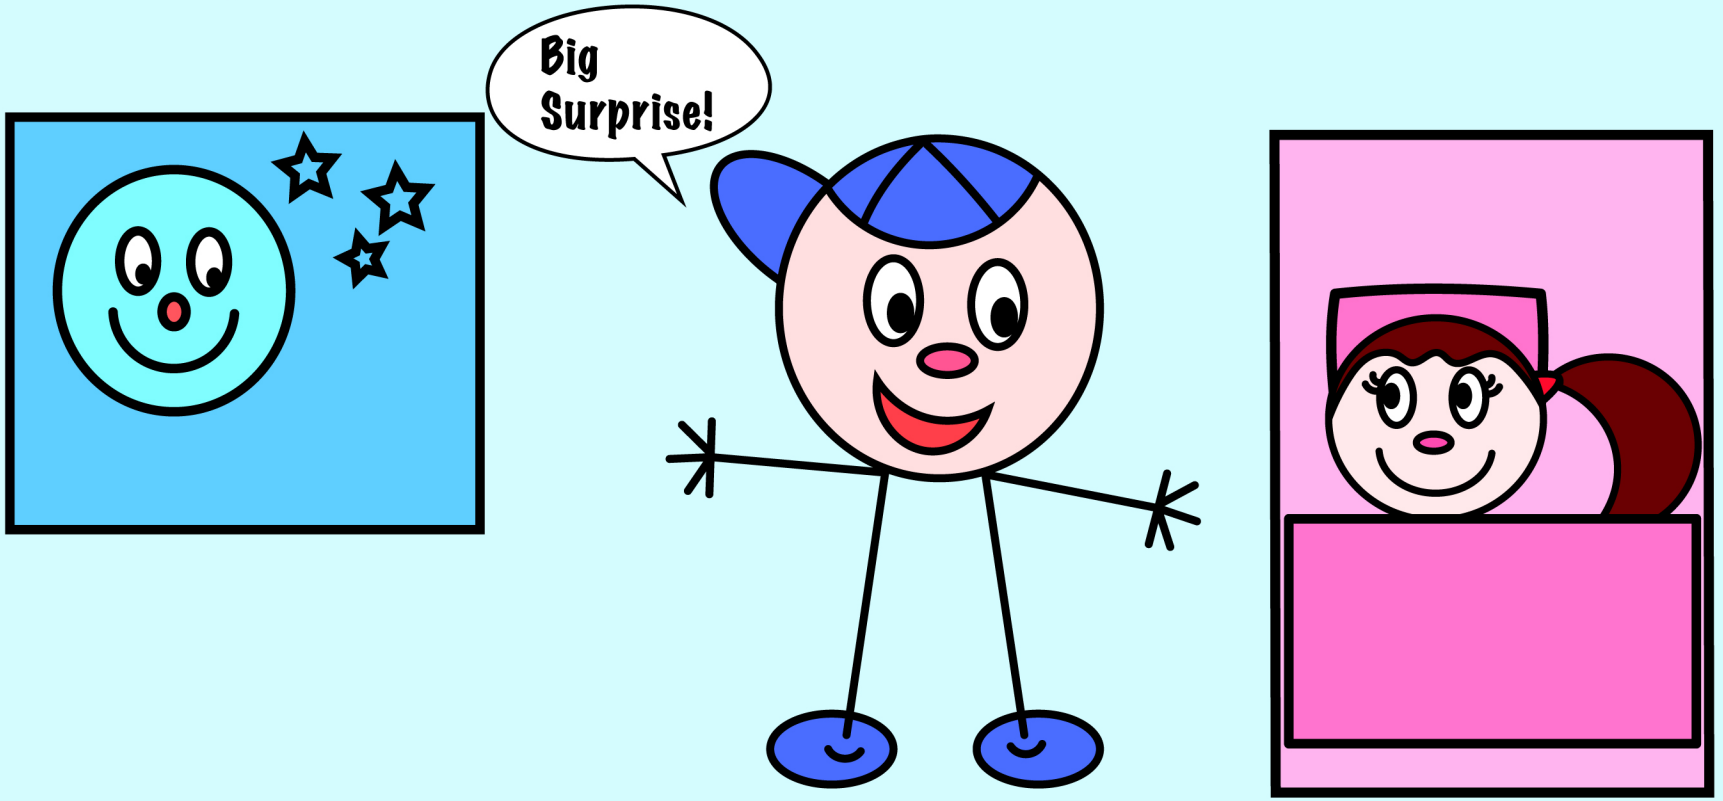

On the night before Easter, Ivie was super excited about the egg hunting she was going to the next day. She decided to go to bed early as she could not stop thinking about how fun the next day would be.

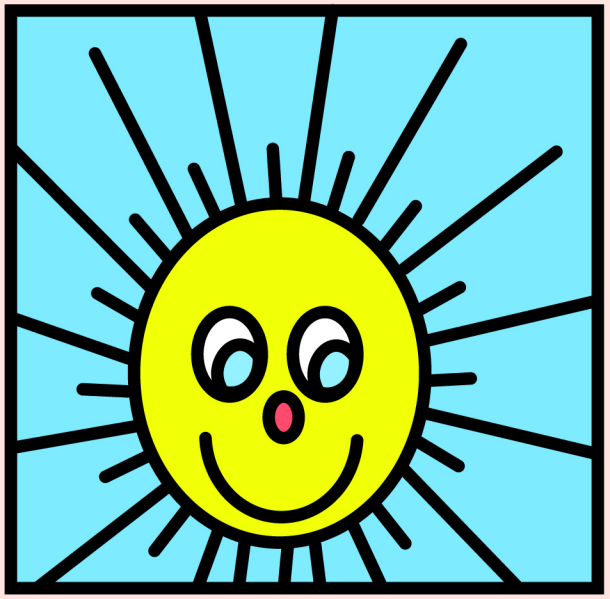

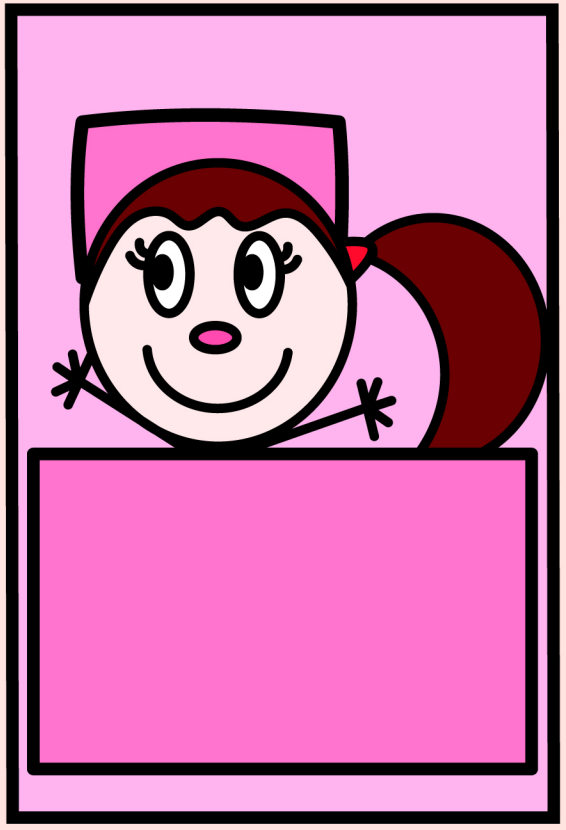

Her dad put her to bed and told her to rest well and get ready for a big surprise in the morning.

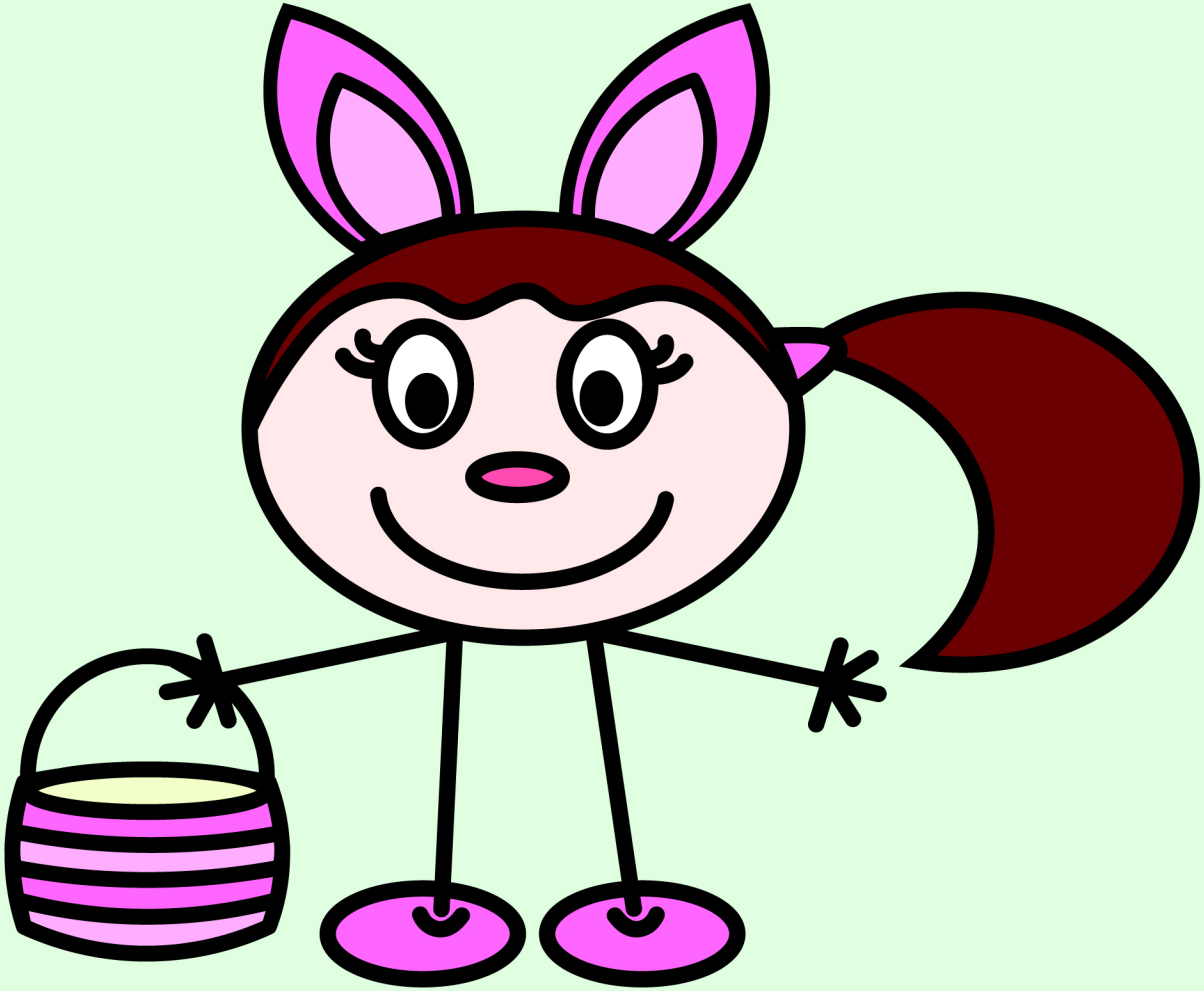

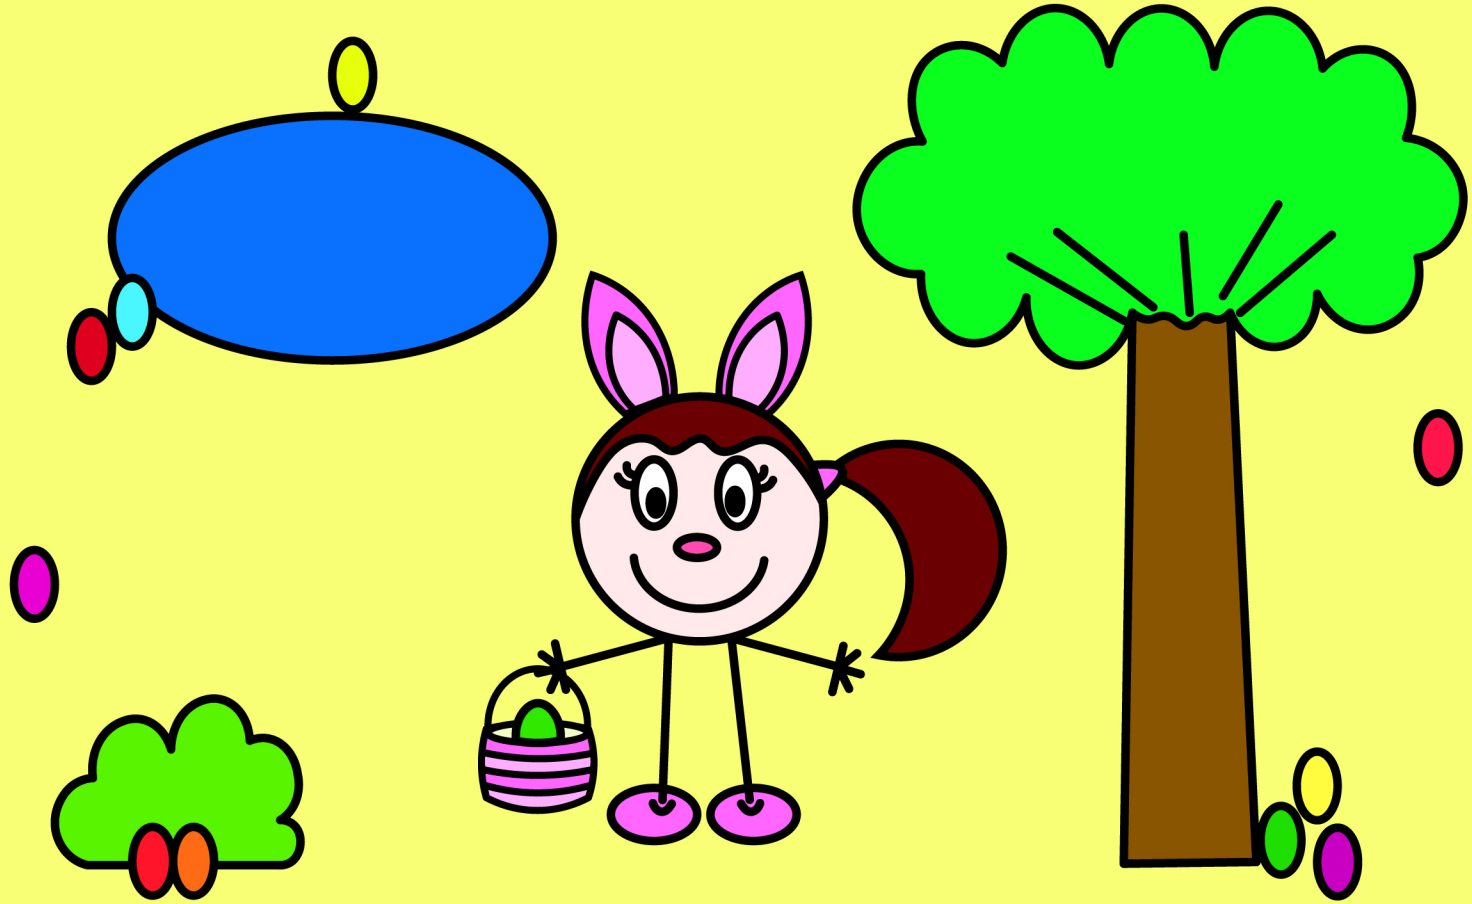

The next morning, Ivie woke up early and jumped out of bed. She excitedly got ready for the egg-hunting activity.

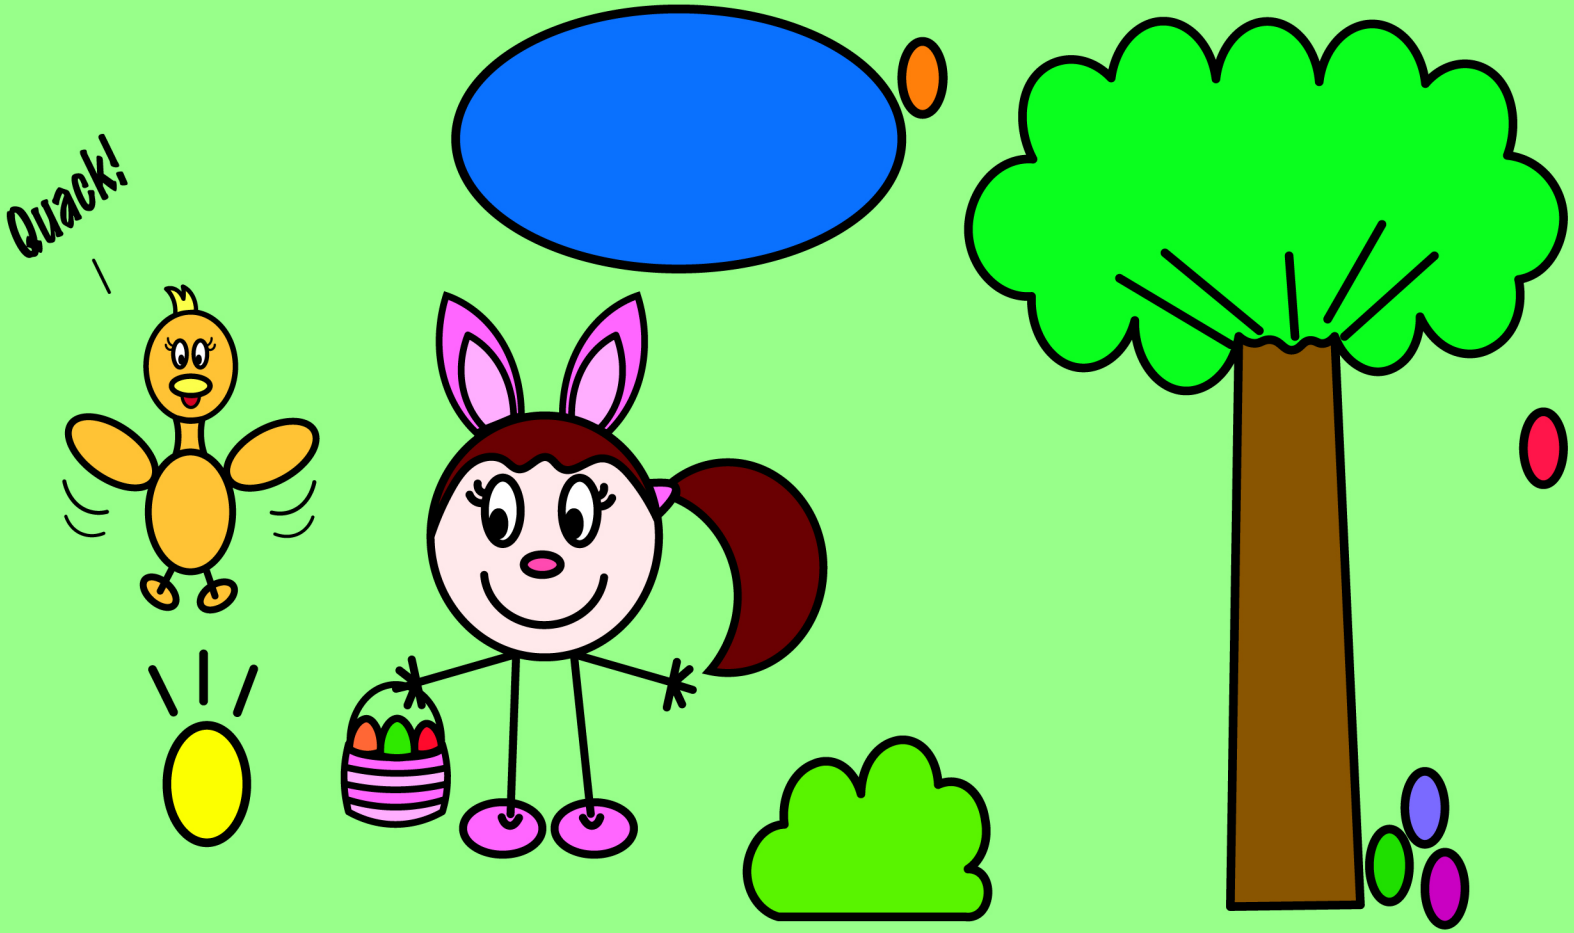

She put on her bunny ears and grabbed her basket to put the eggs she would find inside.

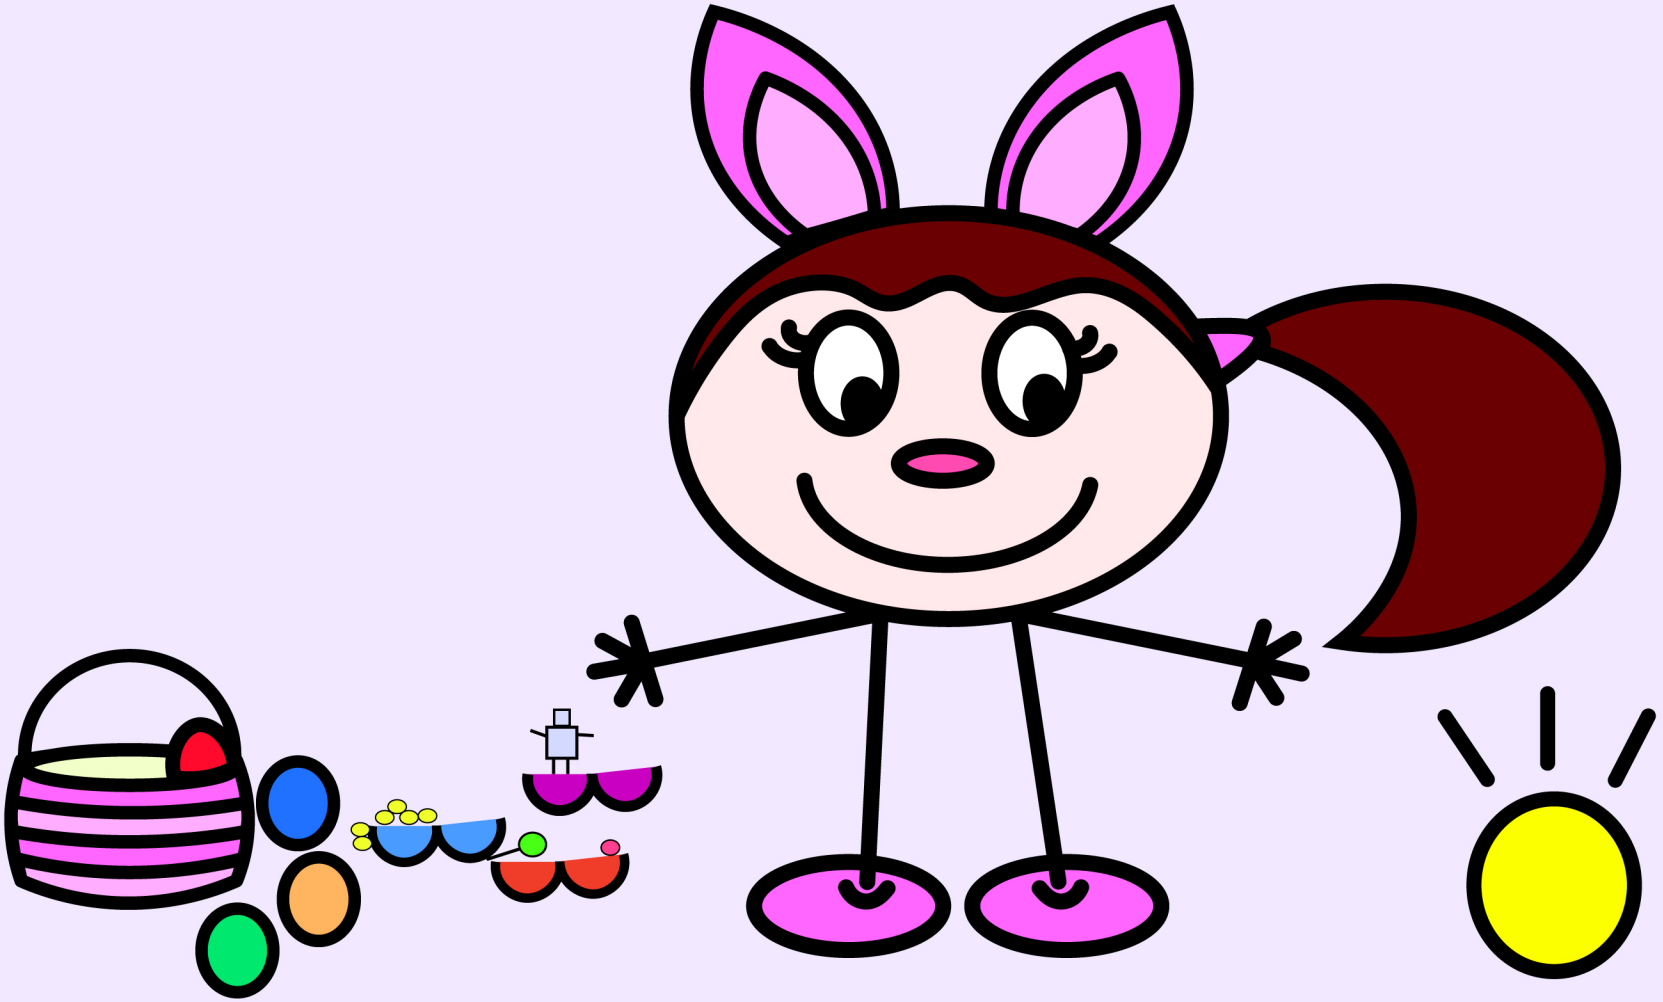

Her dad hid eggs all over the place; under the tree, next to the bush, and by the lake. She searched for eggs everywhere. The egg-hunting activity was super fun!

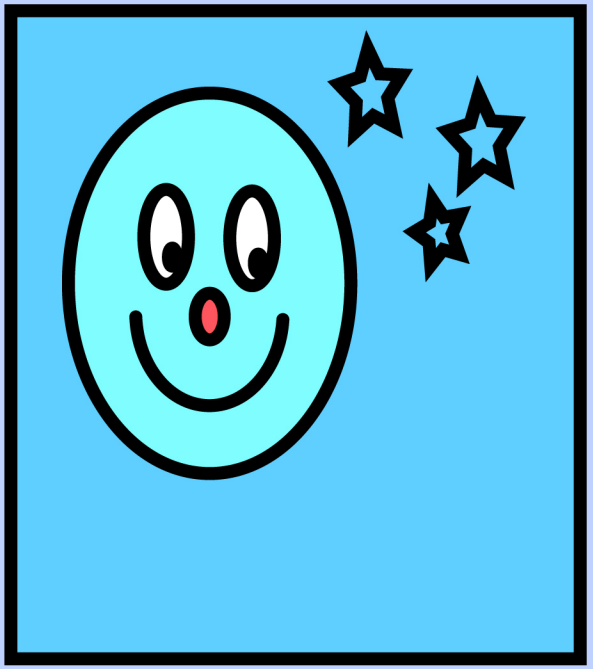

Soon, her basket was almost full, and she was getting ready to return home.
She then found a golden egg next to a duck. The egg was big and shiny.
She took the egg with her, but the duck got upset for some reason, when she took the egg.

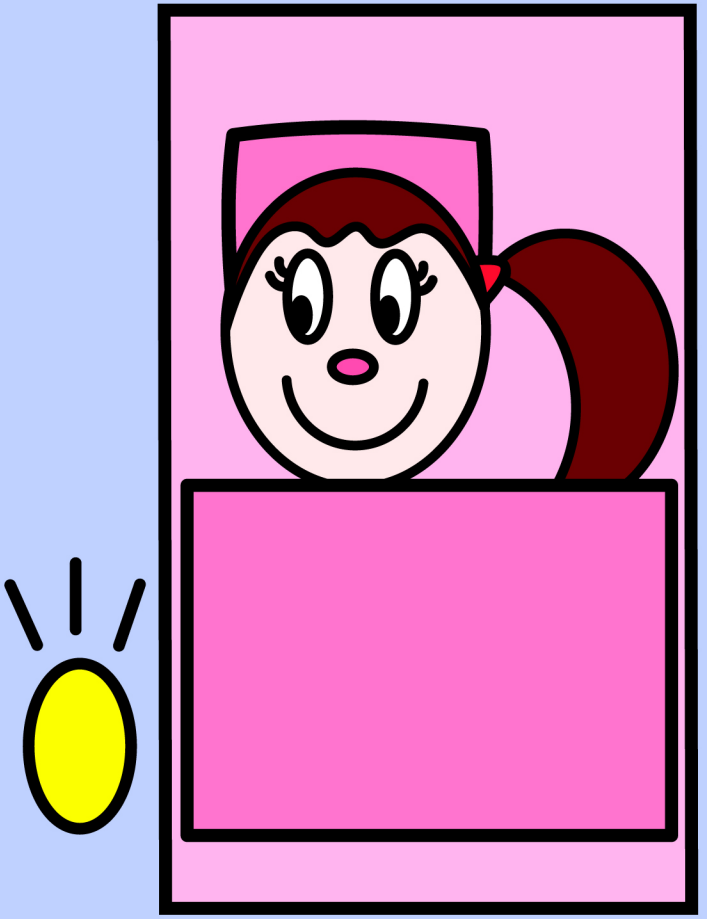

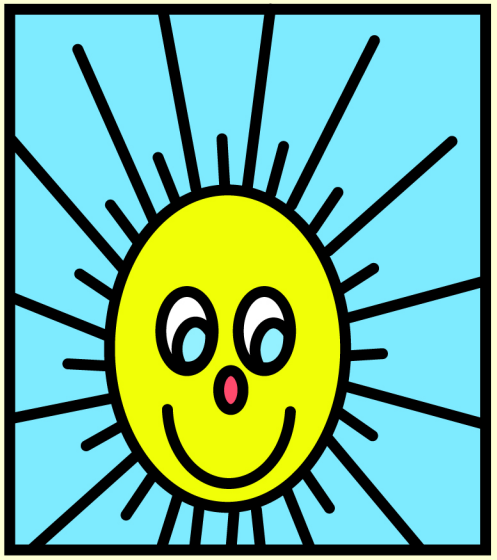

Later, she oppened the eggs, and enjoyed all her findings (toys, candy, and money).
But, she didn't try to open the golden egg.
"This egg is just so pretty. I'm going to put it in my room," she said.

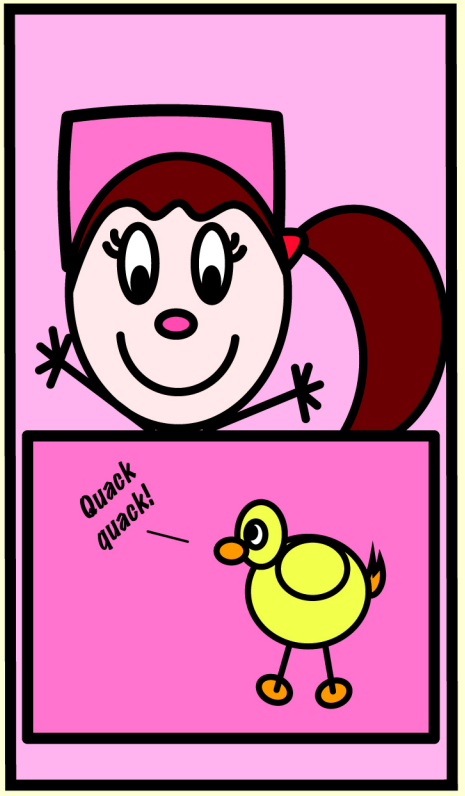

She placed the egg near her bed and went to sleep. She did not know what a big surprise she would get in the morning.

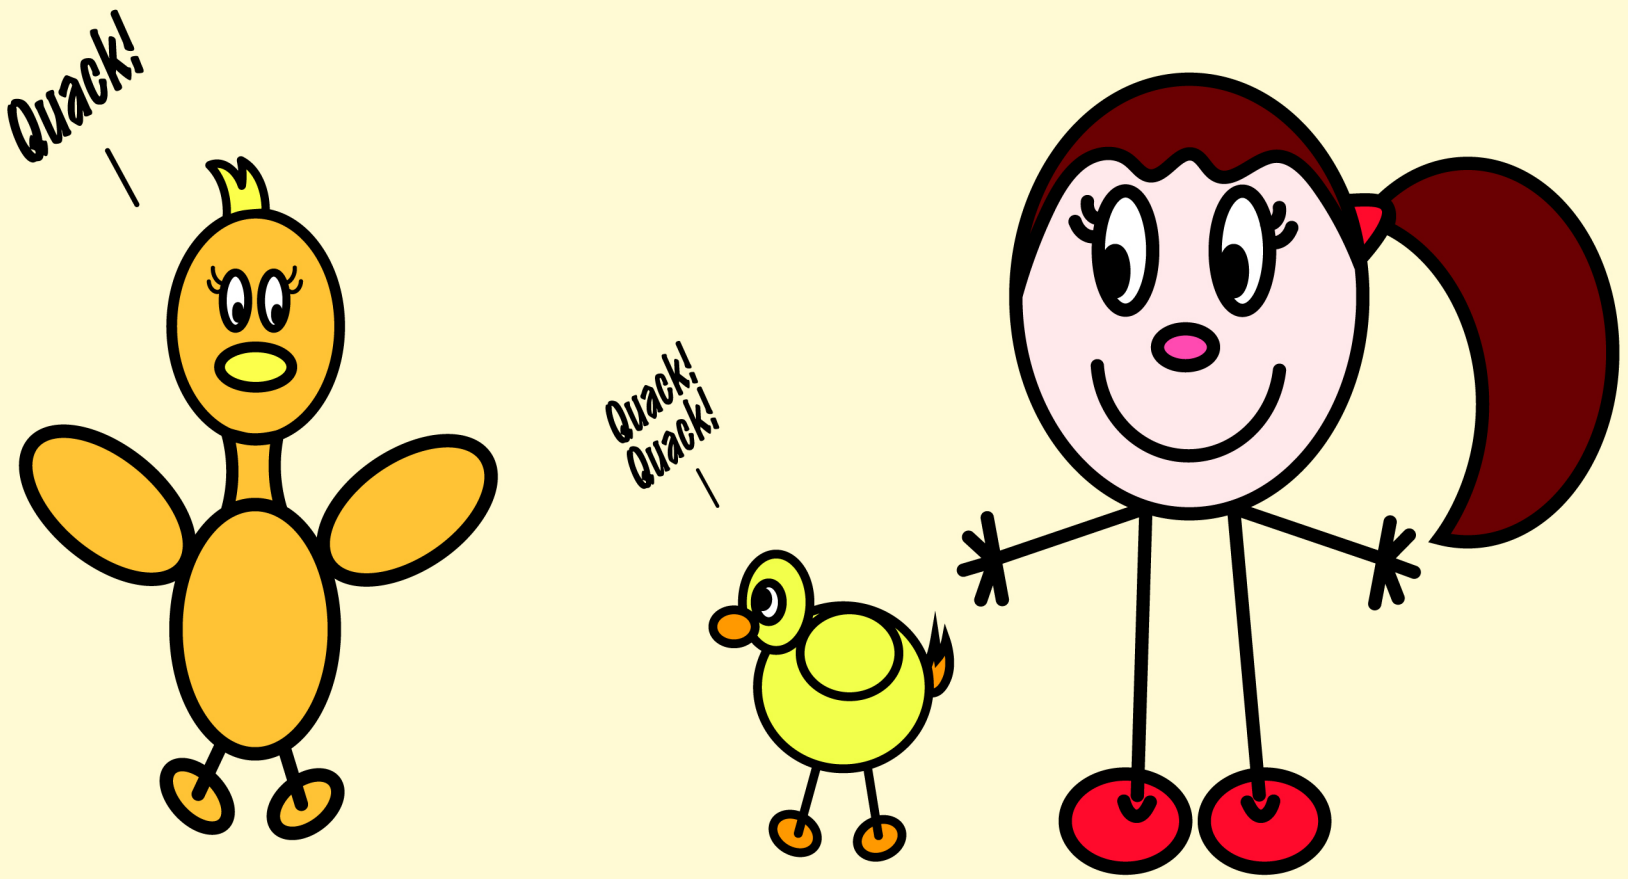

By the time Ivie woke up, the egg had hatched. A little duckling jumped on her bed and called her "Mommy."

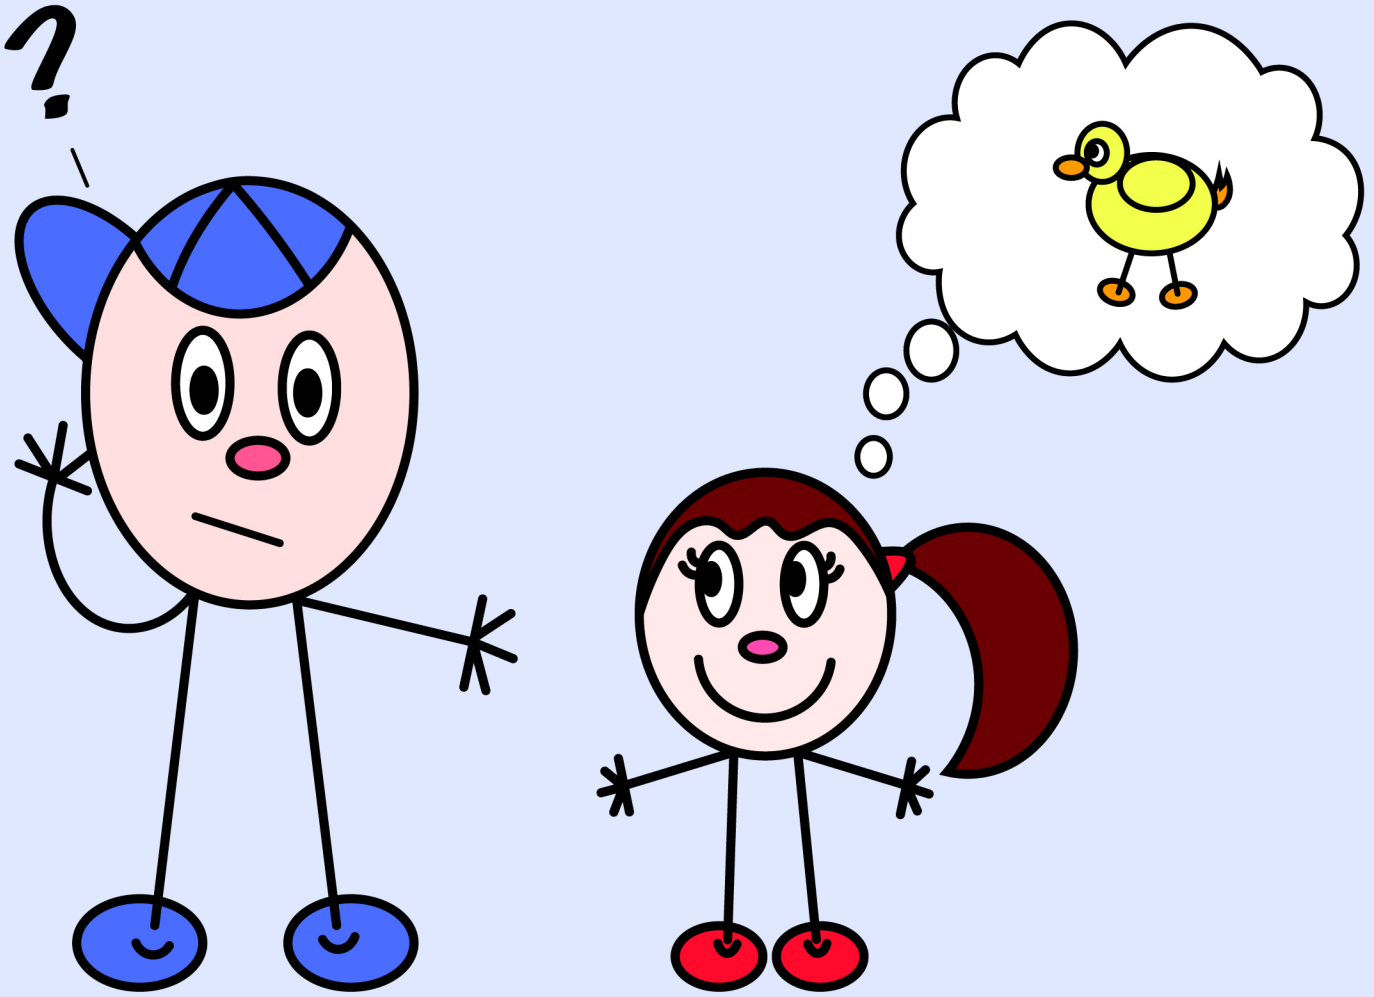

Ivie was surprised!
"I'm not your mom, but I know who she is, said Ivie as she remembered the duck near the egg.

She took the duckling outside and gave it back to mama duck.
"Thank you Ivie!" Mama duck said.
She kissed her baby, and they both went home.

Ivie was very happy. She ran back home and gladly exclaimed to her dad, "I had the best Easter surprise. Thank you daddy, you're the best."
