Flucas

Presents:

Ivie and the Spooky Night

Fluc s

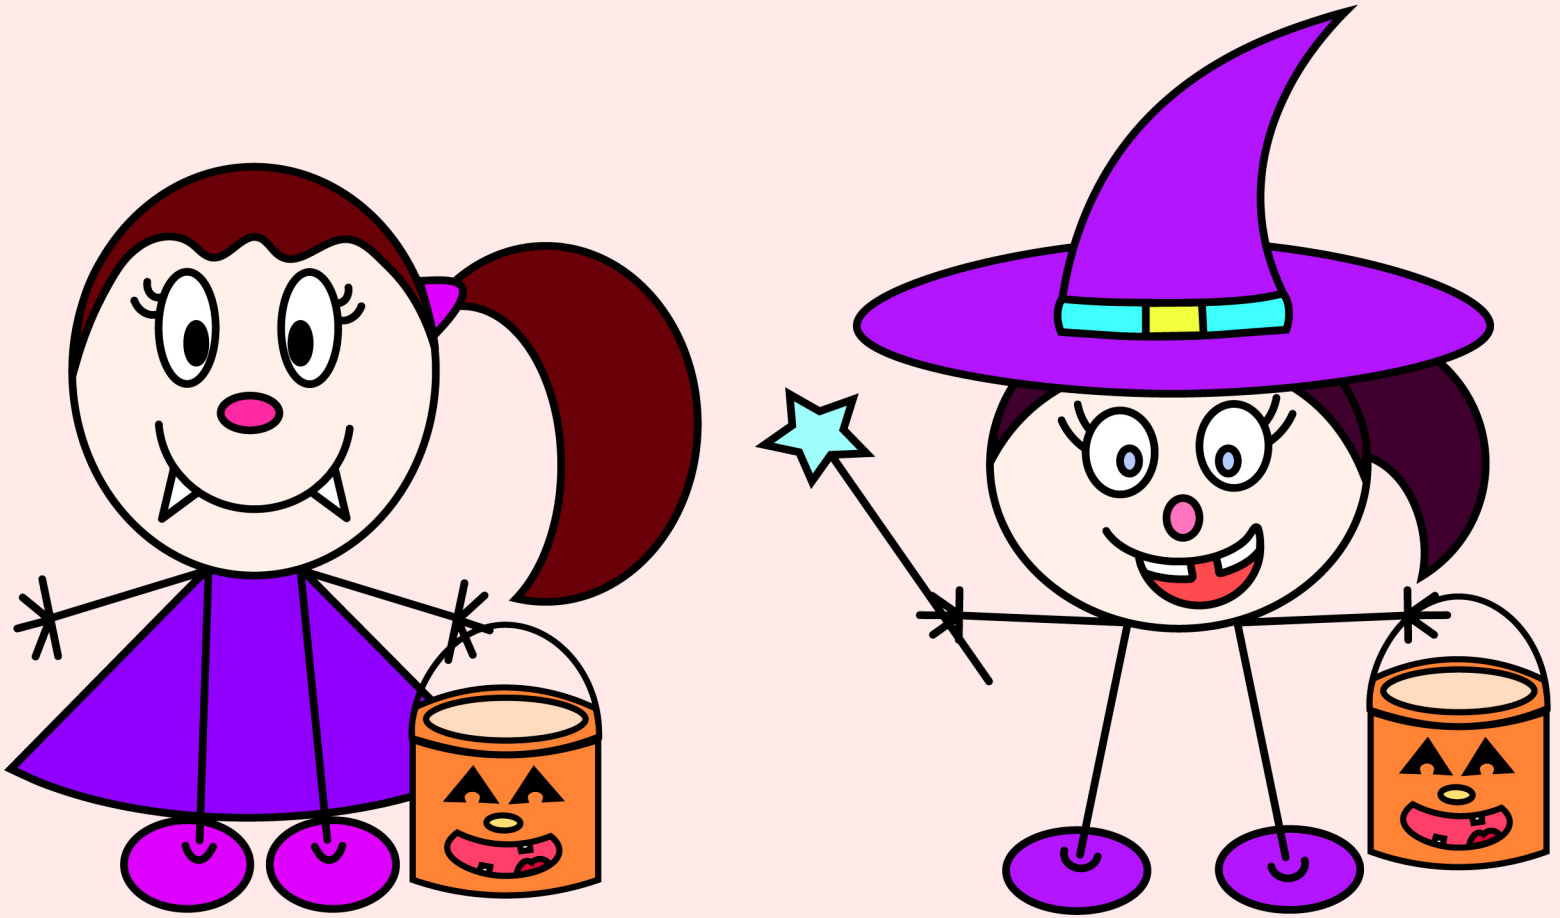

Presents:

Ivie and the Spooky Night

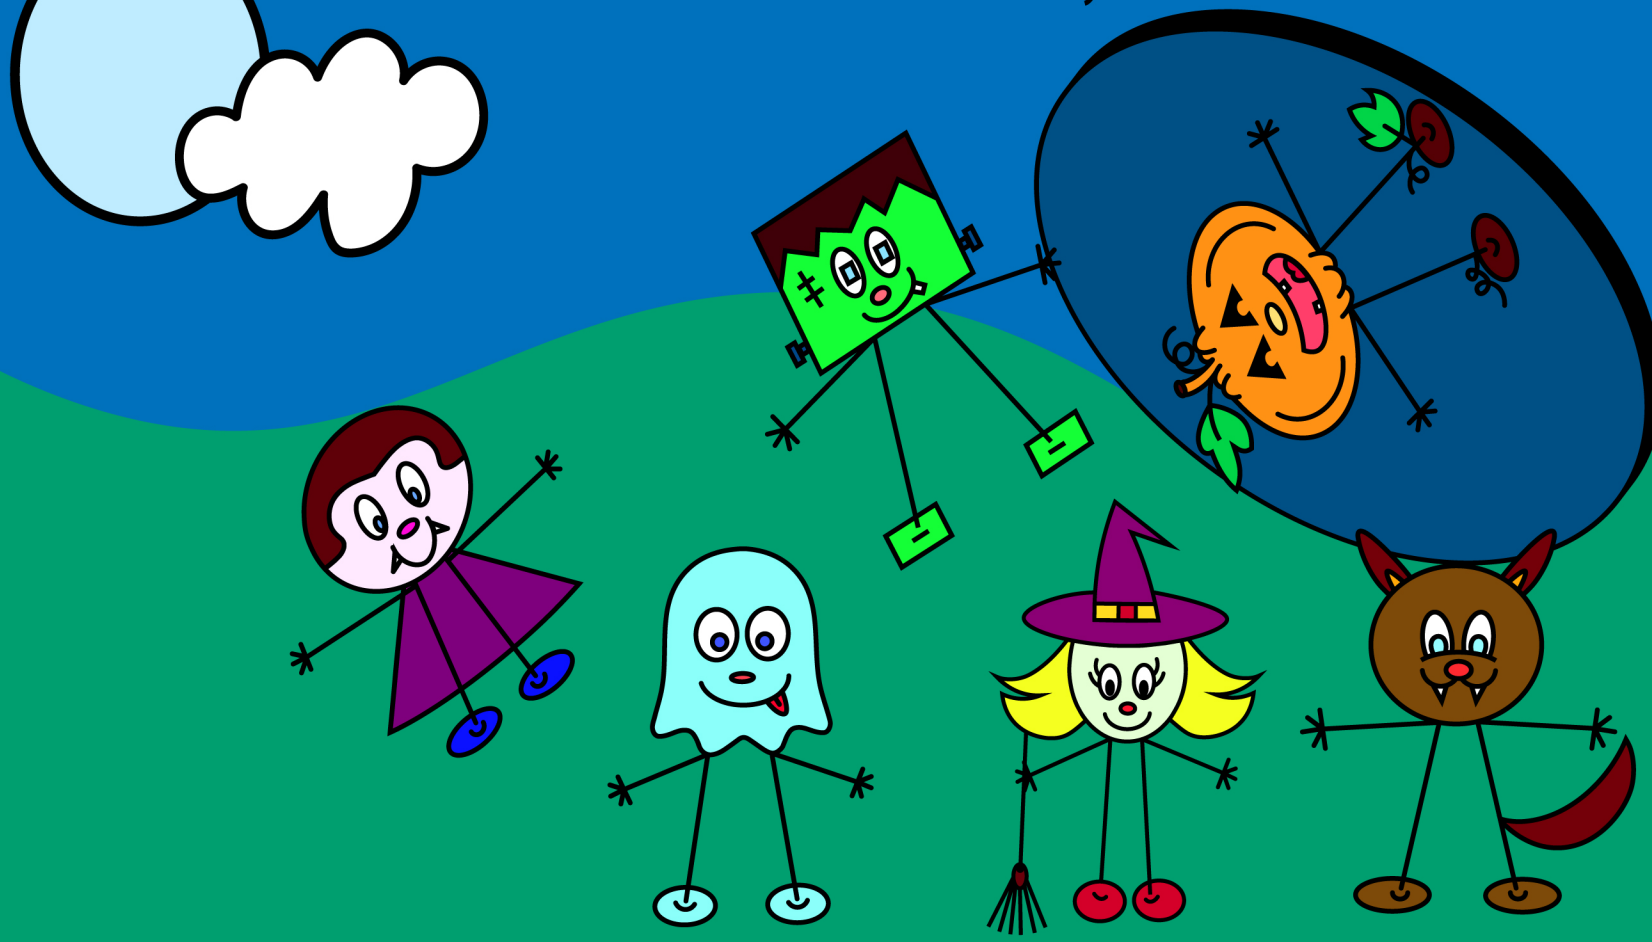

Authors: Italo & Ivie Moura
Illustrators: Italo & Ivie Moura

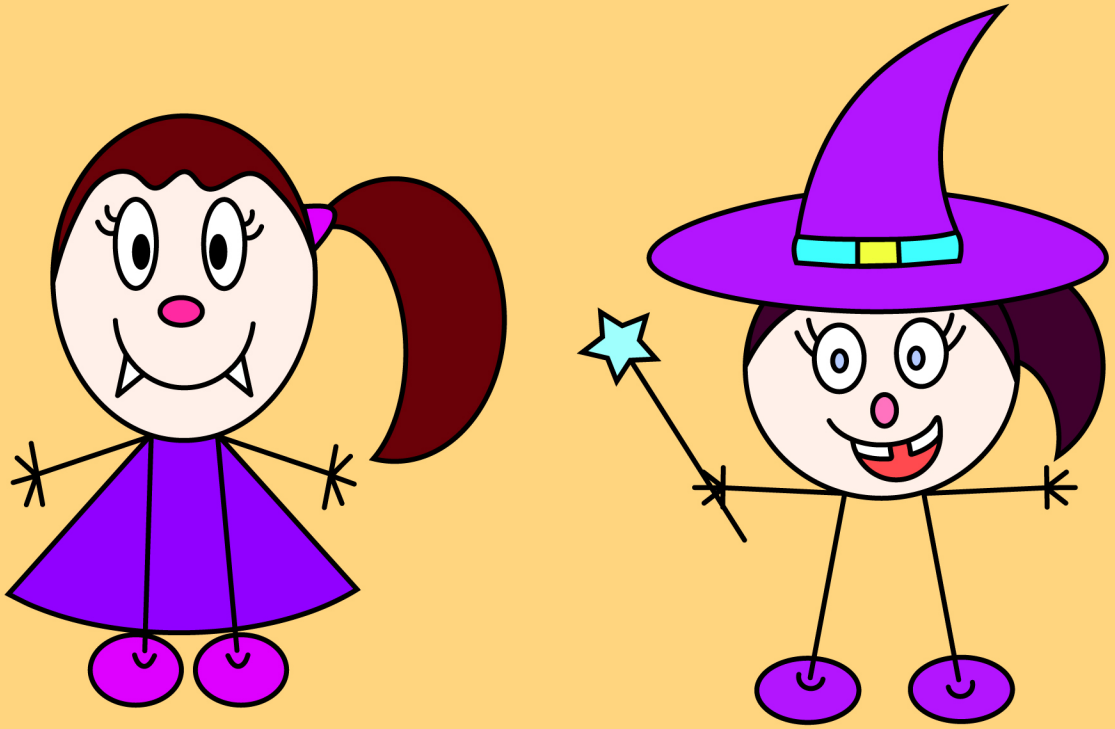

I DEDICATE THIS BOOK TO THESE TWO AMAZING LITTLE GIRLS. IVIE AND AMELIA,
I HOPE YOUR FRIENDSHIP ONLY GROWS STRONGER AND LASTS A LIFETIME.

A portal from another world opened on Halloween night, and real monsters entered Fluco's city.

Not far from the portal, Ivie and Amelia were getting ready to enjoy some trick or treating. Ivie was dressed as a vampire, and Amelia wore a witch costume.

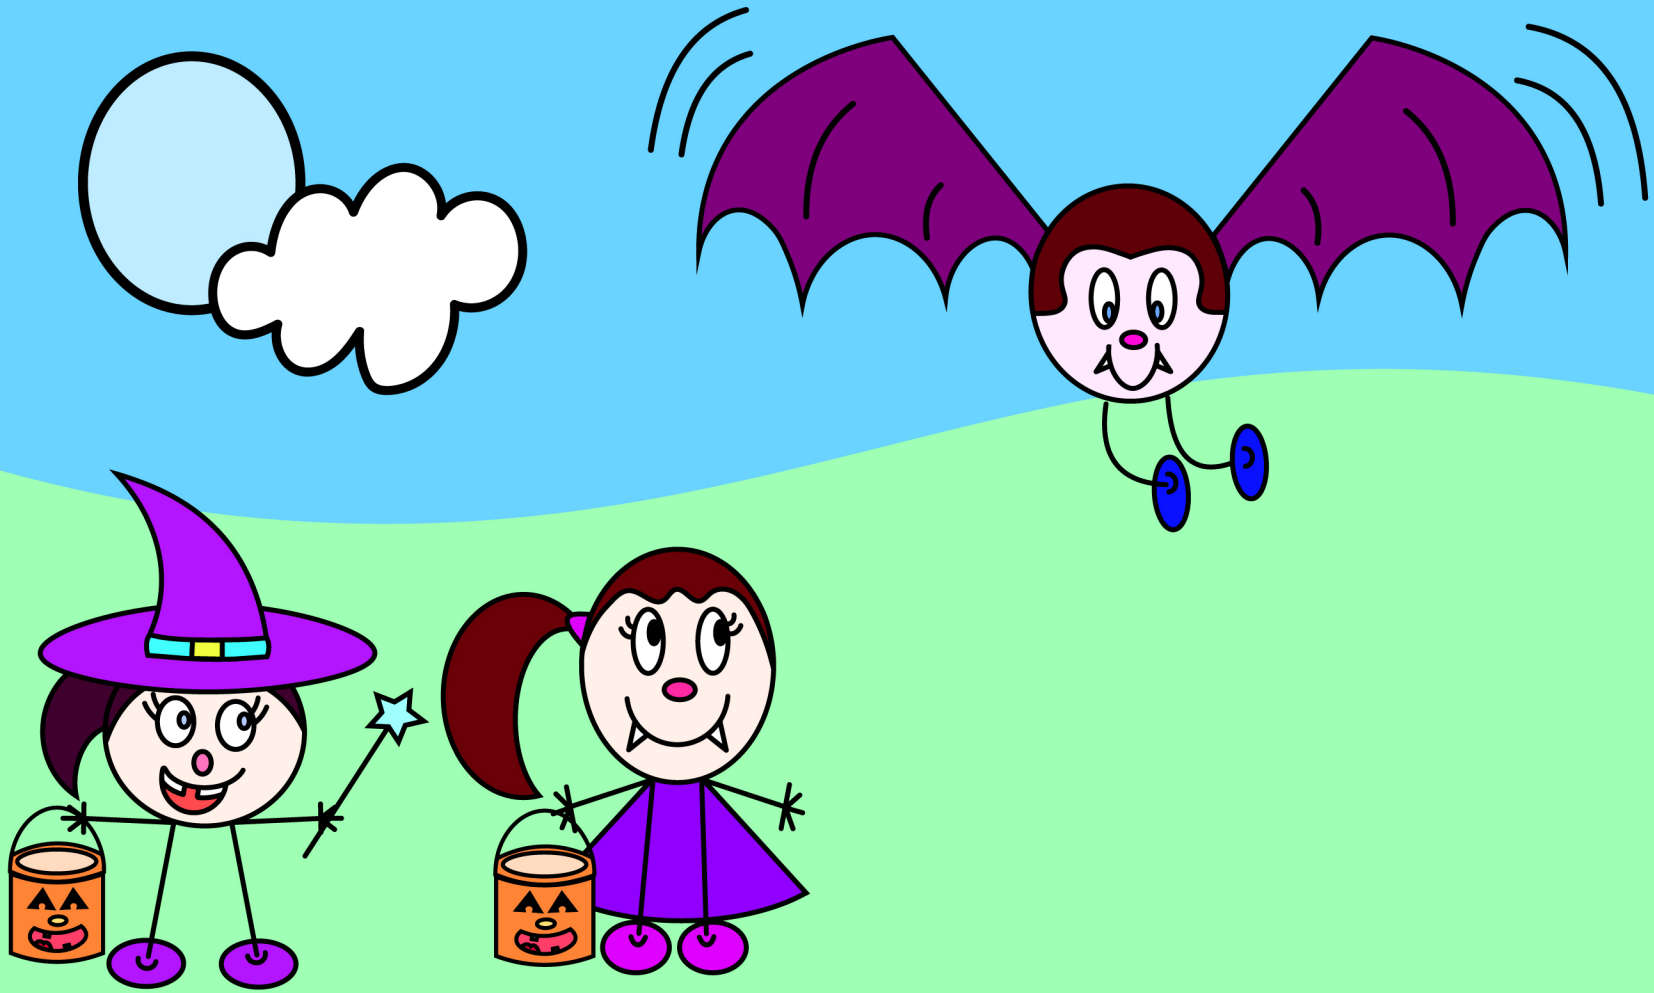

They both got a Halloween basket to fill up with delicious candy for their parents to eat.

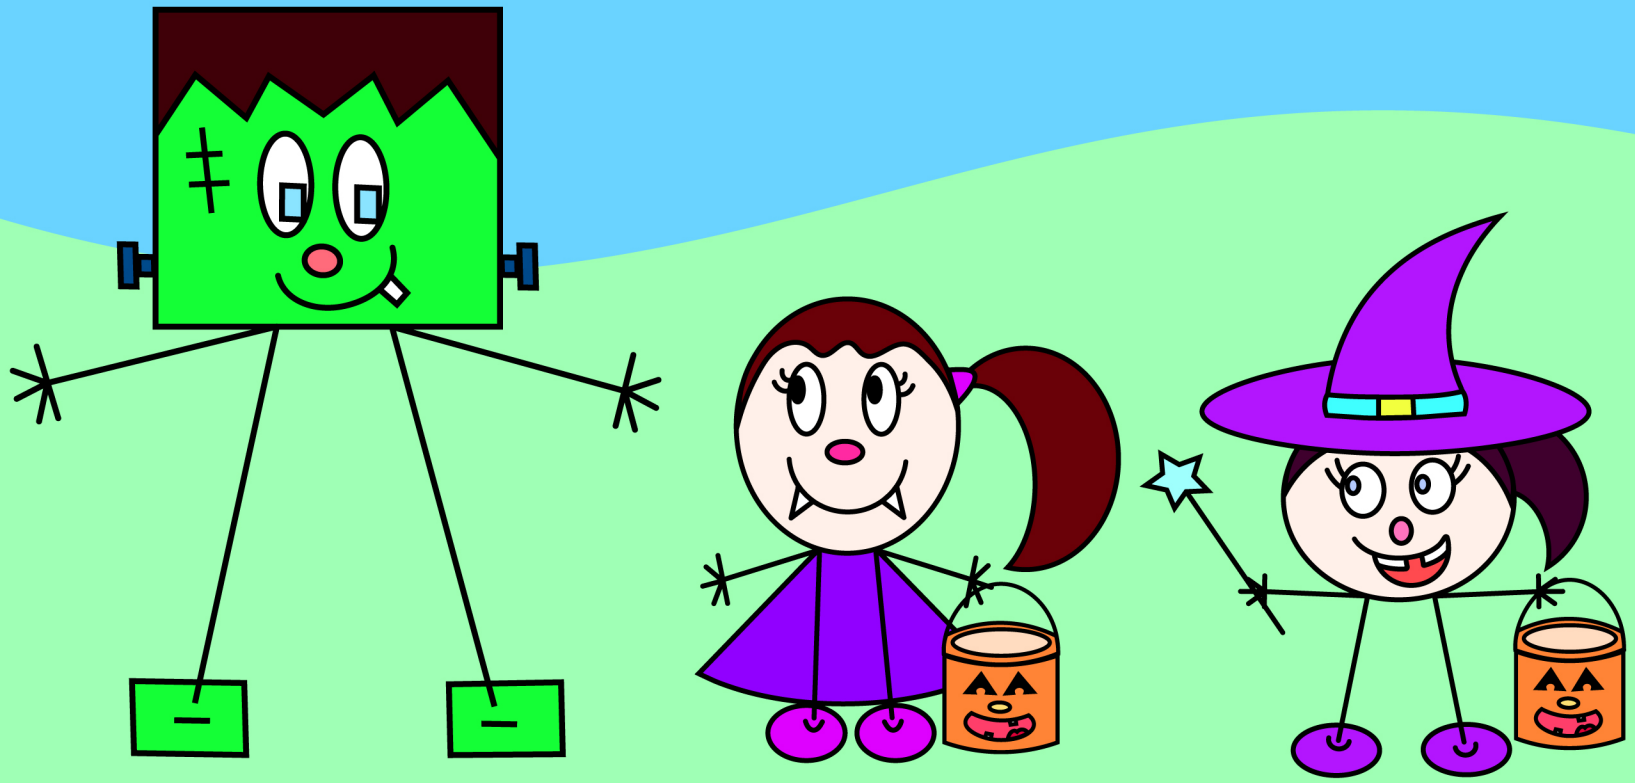

First, Dracula appeared in front of them. "I love your costume," said Ivie to Dracula.
"This is not a costume," replied Dracula. "I'm a real vampire," he said, revealing his identity.
"Of course, you are, and so am I," said Ivie. The girls giggled.
"Don't be silly. Real monsters don't exist," said Amelia.

"I'll prove it to you," he said. Then he turned into a bat in front of them and flew away.
"This is a cool trick," said Ivie. "This kid has natural talent. He should be on tv," said Amelia.

The girls kept walking, and soon found Frankenstein's creature in front of them.
He seemed lost, so the girls asked if he needed help. "I'm looking for my dad," said the creature.
"What's your dad's name?" asked Ivie. "Doctor Victor Frankenstein," replied the creature.
"I know a doctor who lives nearby. He lives in a yellow house a few blocks away. You should try looking for him there," suggested Amelia."Thank you, girls!" Said Frankenstein as he walked away.

Next, the girls met Jack o lantern. Ivie was impressed with his whole look.
"Your costume is amazing," she said. "This is not a costume," replied jack.
"I know, you're a real monster. We've heard that before," scoffed the girls sarcastically.
Jack was puzzled. Never in his life had he met people that were not scared of him.
These girls are fearless, he thought.
Both the girls shared some of their candies with Jack and then continued trick or treating.

“There are so many great costumes this year,” said Amelia.
“I agree,” said Ivie. “If we were to vote, I would say Jack had the best costume,” she continued.
All of a sudden, a witch appeared in front of them.

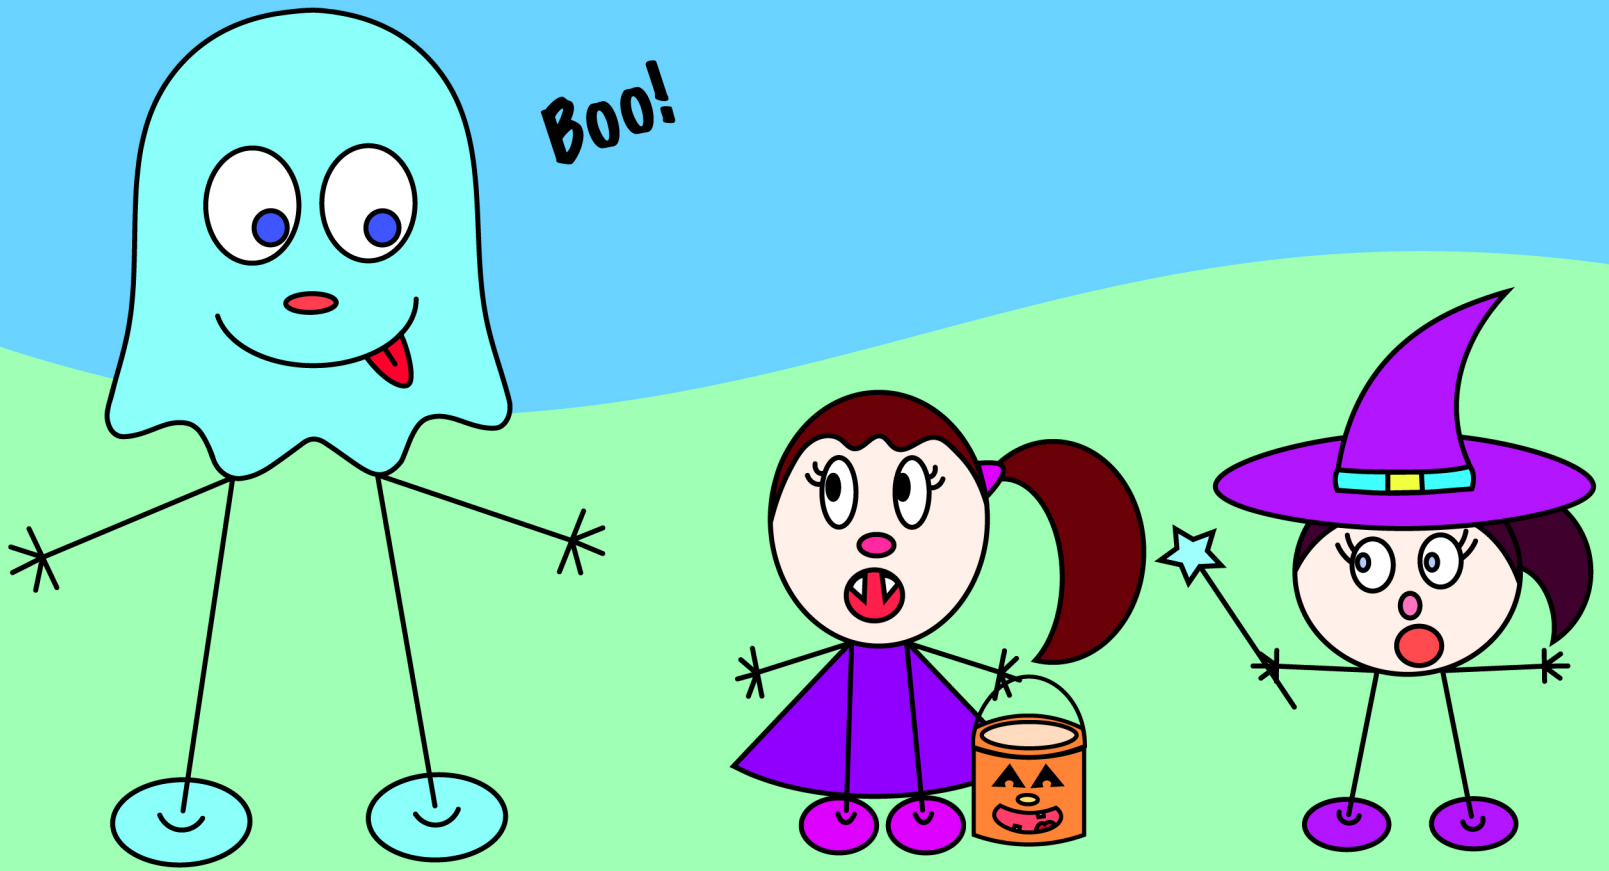

“Wow! I would vote for this one,” said Amelia totally mesmerized by the witch.
“Where did you get that costume? It’s amazing!” she inquired. “This is not a costume…”
The witch was going to finish her sentence when the girls interrupted her and mockingly replied, “Yes, we know…we know, blah, blah, blah” And they burst out laughing.

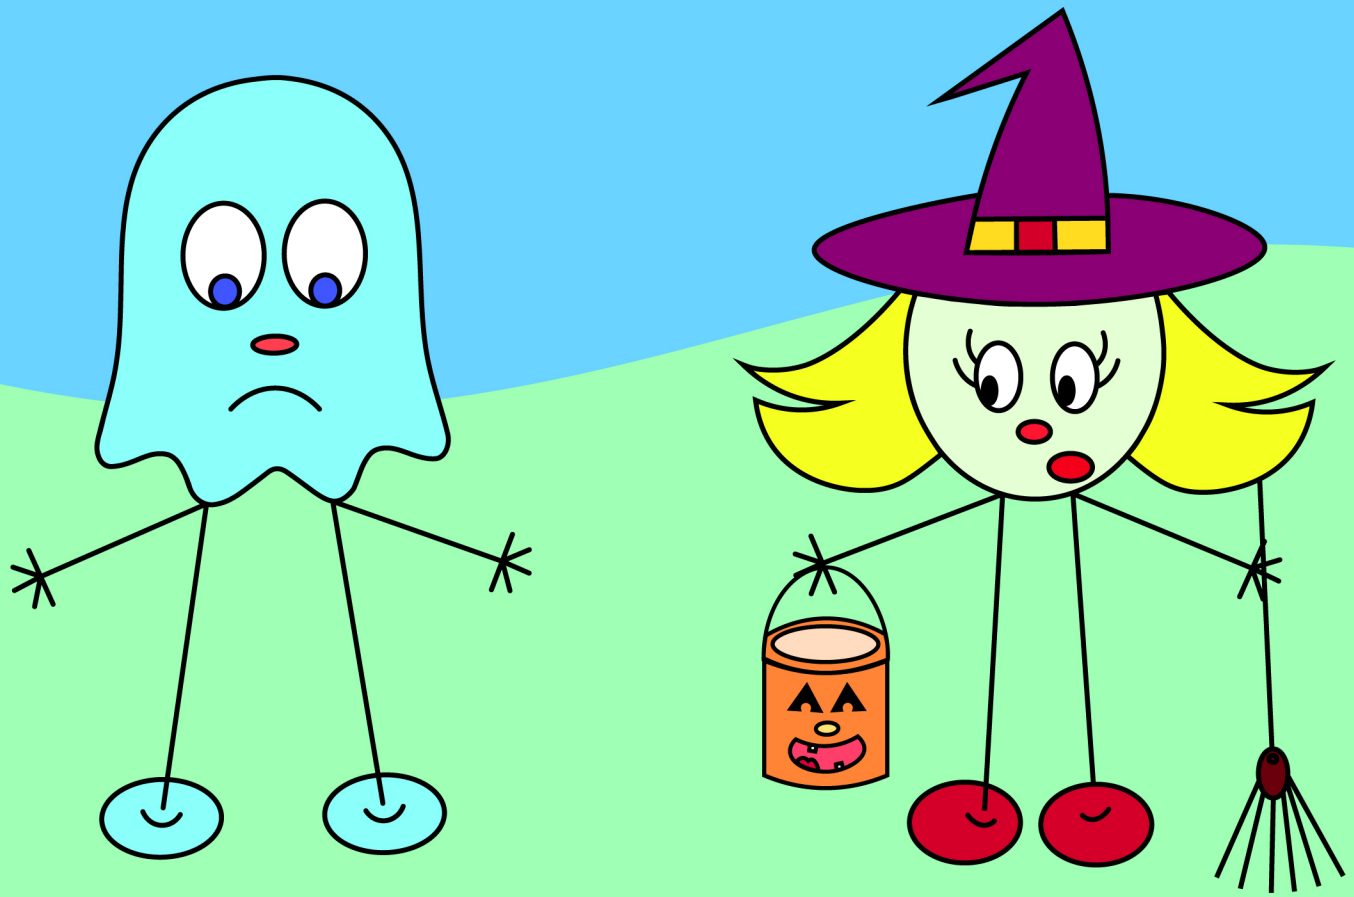

The girls were lucky because this was a good witch." There are other real monsters out here tonight, so I'll stick around to protect you girls," said the witch. "Ok, but if you're going to trick or treat with us, you'll need this," said Amelia, handing over her basket for the witch to get candy.

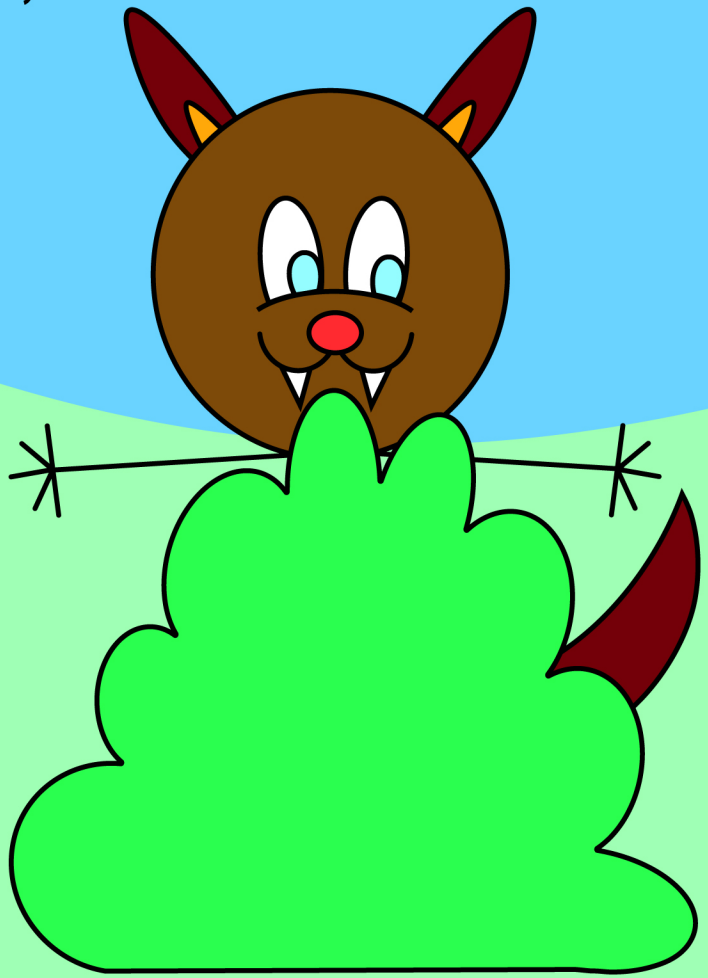

They entered a spooky house, and as Ivie was getting ready to ring the doorbell, a ghost came out and shouted, "BOO!" The girls ran as fast as they could because they really got scared this time.

The witch told the ghost that what he did wasn't nice and ordered him to return home.

As soon as the girls caught their breath, they decided to go back home. It was getting late, and they had had enough fun for the night. However, as they walked back home, they passed by a bush in which a werewolf was hiding behind it, ready to jump and attack his next prey.

When the girls passed the werewolf, he jumped out of the bush to attack them.
The girls heard a growling behind them, and when they looked back…

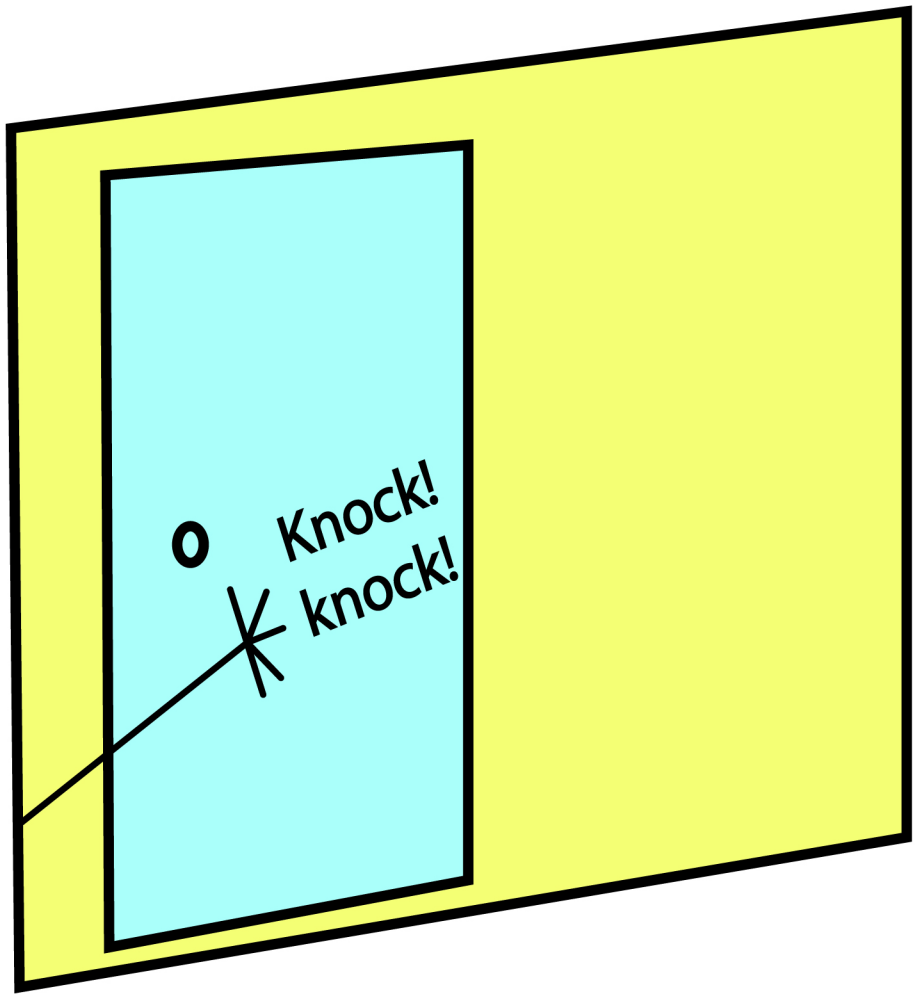

...they saw a cute puppy.
The witch had used her power to transform the werewolf into a puppy just in time to save the girls.

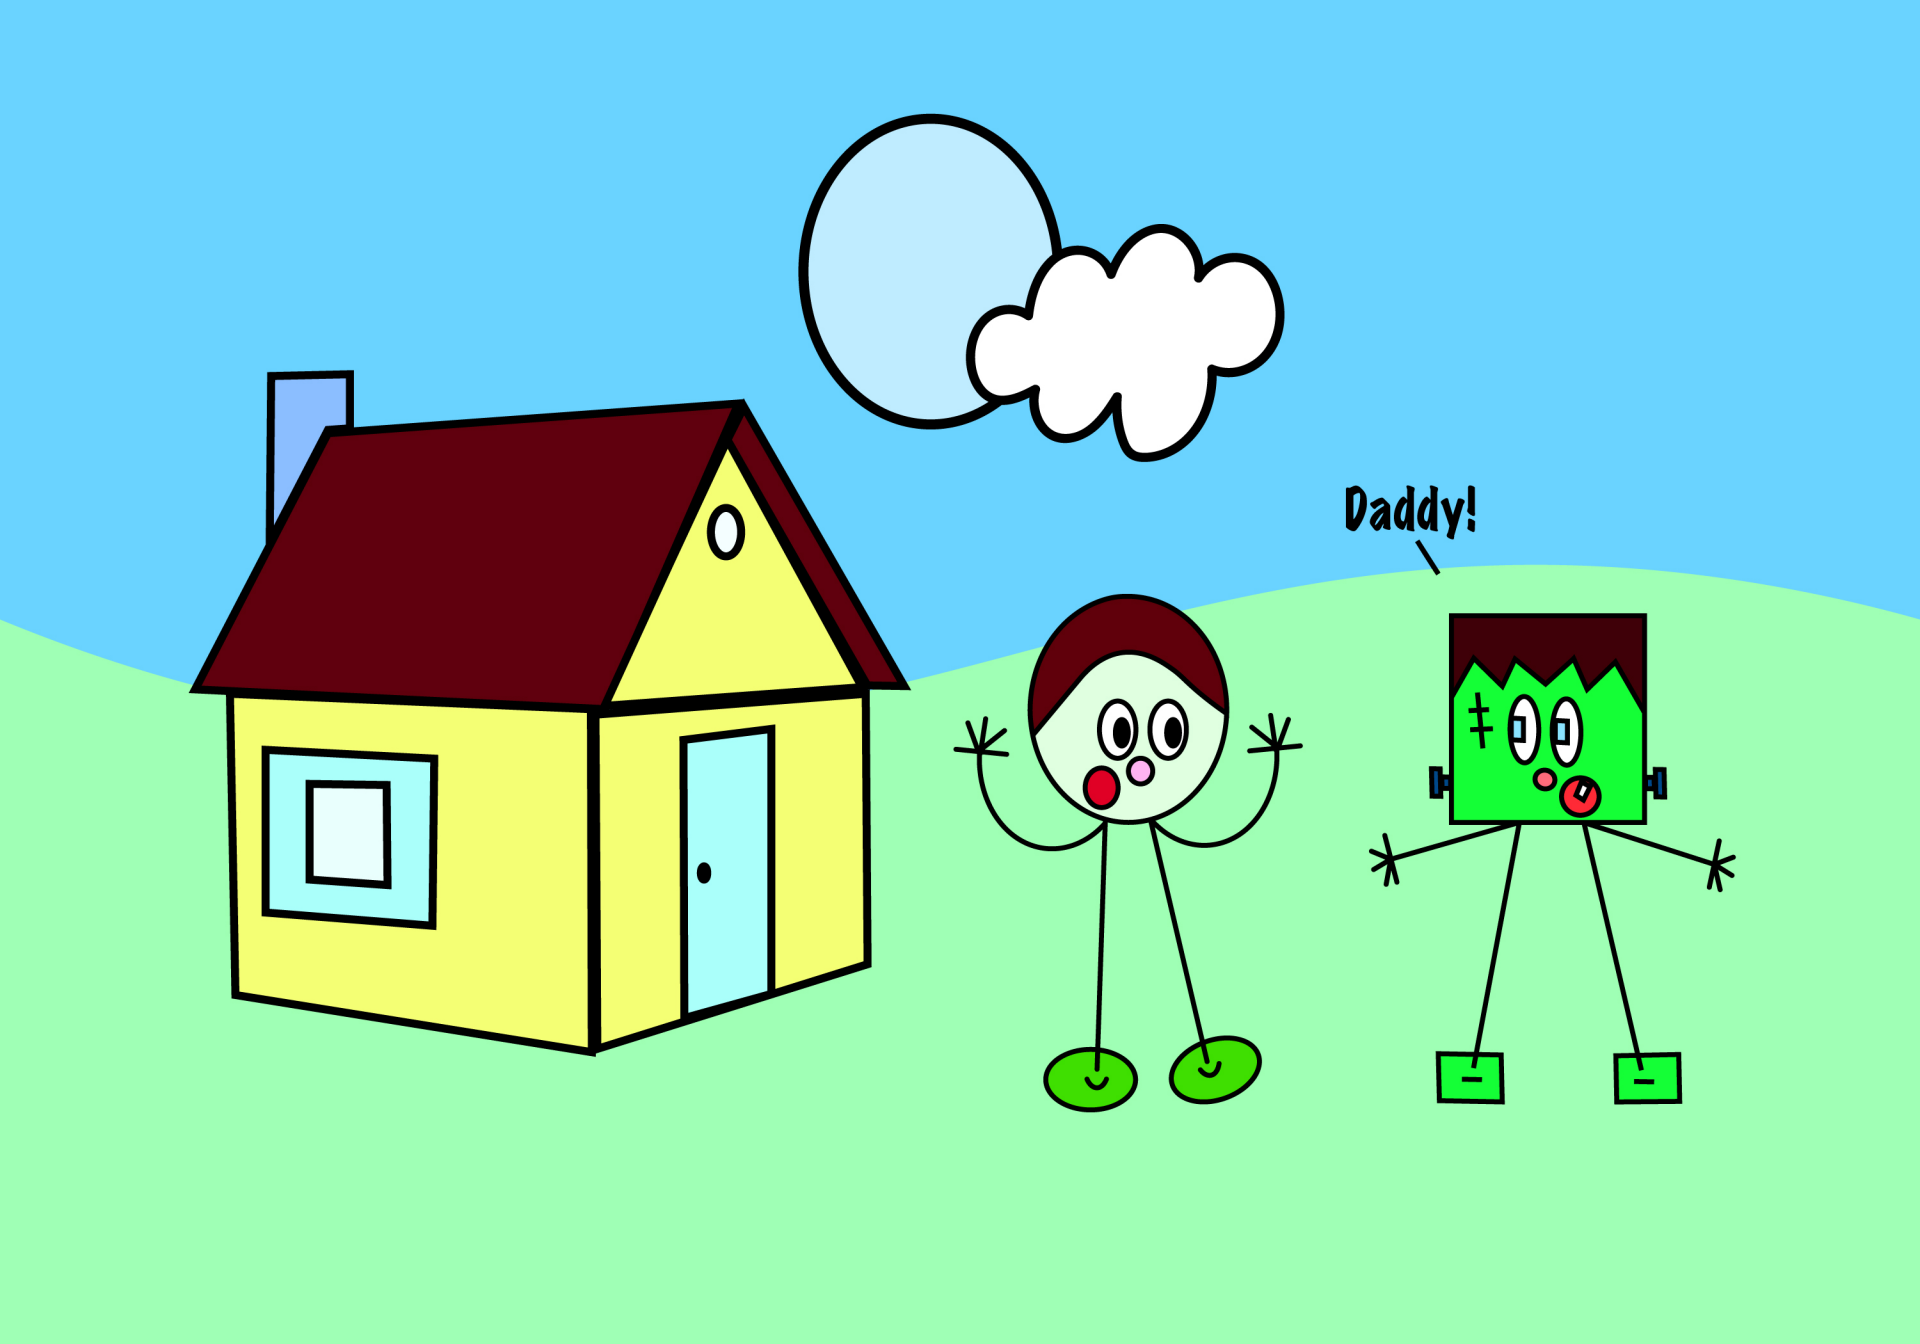

The girls took the puppy home with them along with a basket full of candy to share.
As for the witch, she went back home and took the monsters with her.

Meanwhile… in a yellow house, a few blocks away... a knock was heard.

Daddy!

The End

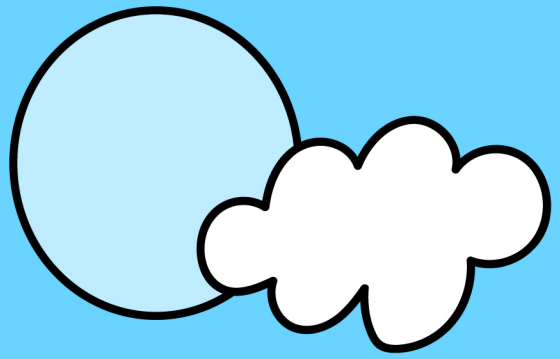

Meet the Authors and Illustrators

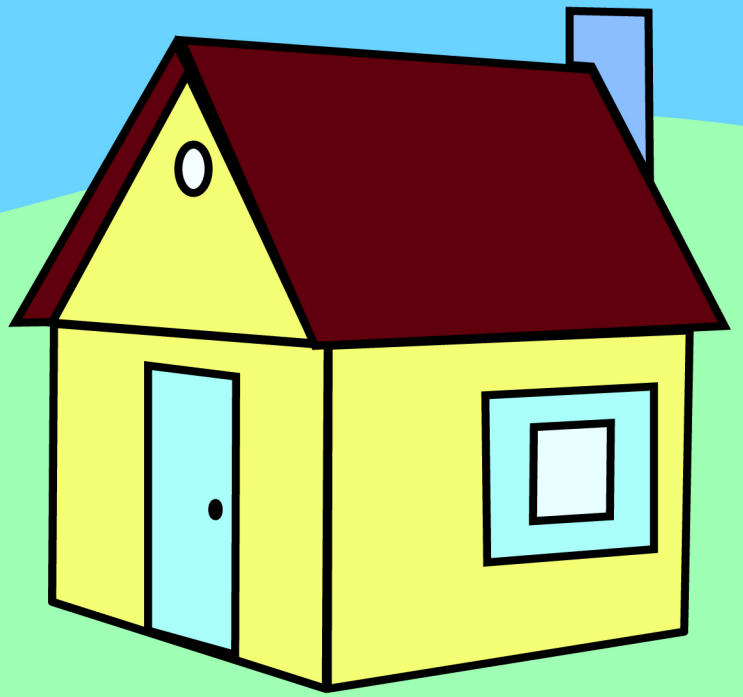

Ivie and Italo are the creators of Flucos. Dad and daughter work together to create fun characters, and stories that they can share with family, and friends.

Ivie and the Spooky Night

$12.99

ISBN 979-8-9859192-1-9

51299>

9 798985 919219